Indeck Energy, Collecting Cell Phones For Soldiers and a Cleaner Environment

130 million cell phones accounting for 16 thousand tons of hazardous waste are retired every year in the U.S.

Buffalo Grove, IL, Mar. 2010 – 130 million cell phones, accounting for 65,000 tons of waste including 16,000 tons of hazardous waste, will be retired in the U.S. this year. Indeck Energy announces a program for its employees, families and friends that will keep the phones out of landfills and provide pre-paid calling cards to our military servicemen and women in Iraq and Afghanistan. Indeck Energy is asking all of its employees to collect unwanted usable cell phones which will be donated to Cell Phones for Soldiers, a charity that since 2004 has provided a free card program to our men and women serving in our armed forces.

“We want to help our soldiers and the environment at the same time. We are committed to a cleaner environment and want to support our troops – two great causes are served by one program,” said Gerry DeNotto, Indeck Energy president.
